RECOGNITION OF PRIOR LEARNING

What is Recognition of Prior Learning?

British Dodgeball's Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) is the recognition of a learner's prior formal learning – learning which has previously been formally accredited within an education system. This allows the learner exemption from the Generic modules of British Dodgeball coaching courses, and therefore a cheaper course price and an experience which avoids duplication of learning.

Who is RPL designed for?

1. A multi-sports coach or an aspiring dodgeball coach who already has a Level 2 Coach qualification in any sport, obtained within the last 5 years, and is seeking to develop their competence in the delivery of specific dodgeball disciplines.
2. A multi-sports coach or an aspiring dodgeball coach who is a graduate of a CIMSPA-endorsed degree programme certified as meeting the coach professional standard.

Eligibility

Applicants must also meet the coaching course eligibility criteria:

- Meet the age requirements for the course.
- Meet course prerequisites.
- Be able to deliver dodgeball coaching sessions over the next six months.
- Be able to communicate effectively in English (this includes listening, speaking, reading, and writing).
- Have access to a laptop/tablet, good Wi-Fi, and microphone to participate in virtual classroom sessions.
- Any special learning requirements must be made clear at the registration process.

How to Apply for RPL

Applicants must apply before booking their place on a coaching course by submitting a copy of the qualification certificate, their full name, and the course they wish to attend to coaching@britishdodgeball.com.

They will receive a reply within 10 working days. Please allow sufficient time before the booking deadline for the RPL process as British Dodgeball is unable to reserve places.

Successful Applications

Successful applicants will be issued with a link to purchase the RPL version of the specific course at a discounted rate.
